THE DALAI LAMA VISITS MIDDLEBURY

By Jim Kelley

"The visit of His Holiness the Dalai Lama and the symposium on the Christ and the Bodhisattva was without a doubt one of the most unusual and inspiring events in the history of the College. All of us who were privileged to participate in it will long remember how very special it was."

- Dr. Olin Robison

Indeed amid the blue skies and the rich reds and yellows of the fall foliage tapestry, there flowed an energy deeper than both. As Professor David Eckel of Harvard had informed us before the symposium began, we were to become active participants and not just passive observers in the dialogue between the Christian and Buddhist religions.

Conceived and organized by Professor Donald Lopez and Dean Steven Rockefeller, the symposium brought an overwhelming response from a community not quite sure what to expect. Most people knew very little about the participants: His Holiness the Dalai Lama of Tibet; Brother David Steindl-Rast, a Benedictine monk; Robert Thurman and Luis Gomez, Buddhist scholars from Amherst and the University of Michigan respectively; Ann Ulanov, a theologian and Jungian psychologist from Union Theological Seminary; and Langdon Gilkey, a professor of theology at the University of Chicago. And yet the pews of Mead Chapel were filled for each lecture and 3,500 people assembled at the Field House to hear the Dalai Lama speak. Professor Lopez said: "We were struck by the large community response. The topic captured the heart of the community demonstrating that people are interested in religious issues regardless of their background."

Beginning with a dynamic eulogy on the Bodhisattva by Prof. Thurman and ending with an interfaith service in Mead Chapel, the Symposium broke away the shell that encases our conception of religion. Christianity was ex-

"William Buckley is gone. Let the symposium begin."
-Donald Lopez on Thursday afternoon in Mead Chapel, introducing Robert Thurman, the first speaker in the symposium.

FOUR ESSENTIAL BUDDHIST COMMENTARIES
THE BUDDHISM OF TIBET

"The misconception about Buddhism is that is is cold and dreary, anesthetized; that it means jumping into the freezer of nirvana. You have to hear the words (of the Buddhist scriptures) to realize its liveleness, its love, really."
-Robert Thurman

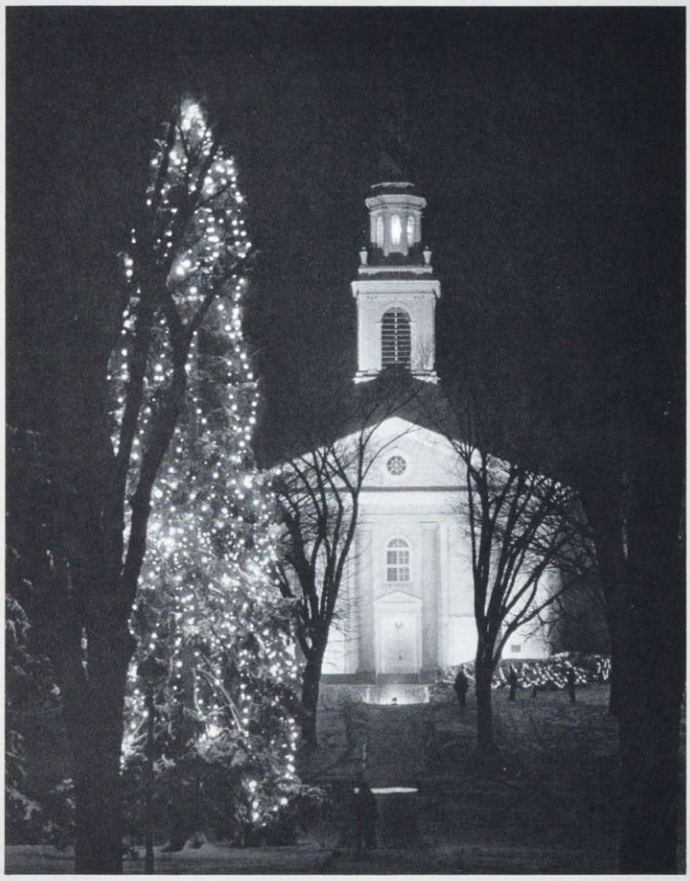
panded before our eyes in ways that perhaps we had not envisioned while the doors to the mysteries of Buddhism were thrown open for us to peer inside. The two figures who perhaps best accomplished this awakening and who most embodied their religious traditions were Brother David and the Dalai Lama. Whether the verbal, doctrinal dialogue was deemed successful or not, the spiritual dialogue was certainly successful, manifested by the bond between these two men. During the lectures they sat together and once when Brother David arrived late, His Holiness motioned him to the place beside him. As Brother David sat down, they took each others' hands, physically expressing a unity that doctrines could never reach. In the same way they forged a bond with all of us. Our hearts felt the warmth of their compassion as our minds absorbed the simple truths of their teaching. Their messages were similar.

Brother David said that the reason for such a dialogue is that "religious are struggling for their relevance" in a world that grows more and more secular with the advance of technology. Christianity must shed its exclusive view of Christ in order to make the Christ reality relevant to all religions. He stressed that "we all belong," that we are all children of God. This was said, not to bolster Christianity at the expense of other traditions, but rather to express the common ground that underlies all religions and all human interactions.

The Dalai Lama also pointed towards a world community. He brought a simple message to Middlebury, reminding us that we are one human family, and as such, we need to generate the familial feelings of compassion. He said that "we human beings, including animals, are born and grow under the kindness of our parents. Without our parents' kindness we cannot survive." He said that we must even show compassion towards an enemy, pointing out that one's teacher can only explain the practice of patience while one's enemy allows one to practice it. His Holiness's message is not a product of blind idealism, but rather one of harsh experience. Compassion for one's enemy is not only a philosophical precept but is an integral part of his dealings with the Chinese. The Tibetans have suffered much at the hands of the Chinese and yet he speaks not of revenge but of resolution.

Wherever the Dalai Lama went, his smiles were returned with smiles, his laughter with laughter. In the faces of those who watched him there was a combination of curiosity, respect, and reverence. His compassionate manner crossed all religious boundaries, touching us in our hearts where such distinctions fall away. Staying at the Hadley House, with a windown overlooking the Green Mountains, His Holiness said at the close of the symposium: "I don't care about views much, what I care about is human feeling. There was true human feeling here."□

THE PUBLIC TELEVISION CHRISTMAS CONCERT BROADCAST FROM MEAD CHAPEL



FILMARTS

THE YEAR IN ARTS

By Lisa Miller

Contradicting the myth that Middlebury is in the midst of a cultural vacuum, the 1984-85 calendar was full of performances by talented actors, dancers, and musicians— professionals and fellow students alike.

The Concert Series brought such well-known musicians as Trevor Pinnock, the harpsichordist, and the Emerson String Quartet, who held their fourth annual residency at Middlebury, giving concerts, teaching master classes and making classroom appearances. The autumn visit of the New England Bach Festival was a fitting prelude to the Bach Extravaganza at the end of March, commemorating the 300th birthday of the Baroque composer. The Music Department celebrated this event with concerts featuring the College Choir and Orchestra, pianist Andy Rangell, and the Vermont Symphony Orchestra.

College musical ensembles kept busy this year with a variety of activities. The year's big event for the College Choir was the taping of the annual Christmas concert by Vermont Public Television, which was broadcast on over one hundred public TV stations throughout the country. The College Orchestra, with its expanded string section, gave its last performance under the direction of Jim Griesheimer. The Mischords took a whirlwind tour of Texas, and, along with the D-8 and Madrigal Singers, entertained on-campus audiences at concerts, parties, and May-Days.

Other Concert Series events included two performances by Shakespeare & Company, who gave controversial interpretations of A Midsummer Night's Dream and Romeo and Juliet. A more traditional Shakespearean production was performed by Middlebury's own Theater Department. Much Ado About Nothing was performed in a manner that fully brought out the humor of Shakespeare's comedies. Other productions in Wright Theater included Night of the Iguana by Tennessee Williams, Lorca's Yerma, and Sam Shepard's Tooth of Crime.

The Hepburn Zoo was kept occupied throughout the year with a variety of student directed and even student-written productions. Not Funny, however, was written by Professor Doug Anderson and was directed by a visiting professional director, Pamela Berlin. Savage-/Love, directed by Robert Gladding, was playwright Sam Shepard's endeavor to put "Love" on stage through the lives of two nameless couples.

The Hepburn Zoo hosted three short student-written plays under the collective title of Virgins. Another student-written play, Darling, The Bed's on Fire, was written by junior Daphne Gil. Getting Out was powerful representation of prison and post-prison life under the direction of Adam Battelstein.

The Dance Department, which has grown by leaps and bounds (pardon the pun) in the last few years, sponsored several guest artists who not only gave concerts but also taught dance classes. From Karen Steele and Bill Evans in the fall term, to Holly Schiffer, Alan Sener, and the Chuck Davis Dance Company in the winter, to Stephen Horenstein and Judith Jamison in the spring, dance students were introduced to many different styles of dance. Student dance recitals were always popular, from Kay Rayhill's "Grounded" in the fall to Stephanie Leighton and Lancer Young-Ribiero's "Visimages," Tyrone Williams' "Secrets," and Penelope Wyer's "Wyer'd" in the spring. Middlebury's Dance Company toured San Francisco over spring vacation, and many students participated in the fall production of "Dancing Wright." □

QUOTABLE

THEY SAID IT

- "It's arguable that we have been through the most radical redefinition of the role of the individual in our society. When we get through this, we will pull up short and say, 'look, there's a lot that's right about our society.'" -President Olin Robison quoted in Time, September 24, 1984, on the resurgence of American Patriotism.

- "I think the house is nice and I like the People I live with, it's just unfortunate that there are screaming children at 7:00 a.m." - Student Sharon Corey on living in the rooms above the Otter Creek Day Care Center used by the college because of the housing crunch.

- "I refuse to listen to five people make the same point five times . . . if I think proposed new business is ridiculous . . . " - Forum Chairman Kley Parkhurst puts his foot down.

- "It will change the social situation quite a bit . . . " - Dean of Students Karl Lindholm on raising the drinking age from 18-21.

- "Things will have to change because downtown will no longer be a social center. Fraternities will become more important to social life." - Kley Parkhurst on raising the drinking age.

- "I'm still floating. I haven't come down from the high yet". - Frank Kelley, Director of residential life, on the Dali lama's visit.

- "I'm only in this robe 'cause the tuition . . . took the shirt off my back." - Bill Moyers during his guest sermon at Mead Chapel.

- "They look good in couples, as if Central Casting matched wholesome ski types for a junior Big Chill. Some are so dazzling that they are referred to as the 'B.P.'". - Lisa Birnbach's College Book on Middlebury students.

- "THE CONFEDERATE COLLEGE OF MIDDLEBURY. If the U.S. is raising the drinking age, then we shall become our own country. Contact Tank or Munch, The Pits. - Campus Classified.

- "Before you ask a girl out, you have to be able to make a commitment, to be willing to consider marriage, six kids, the whole package. And another weird statistic, . . . supposedly, 60 percent of Middlebury graduates marry other Middlebury graduates. They meet each other in the outside world and discover that they have this thing in common." - "Campus Sex", Playboy, May 1985.

- "She's Kute! She's Kuddly! She's Kind! Don't vote for her, vote for Kurse! Ann Krsul for Kween in '85. - Campus classified.

- "You better . . .
  You better . . .
  You Betz . ..
  Bill B. for Carnival King in '85" - Campaign Slogan.

- "Workers of Middlebury: Unite!! We must overthrow this ridiculous carnival theme. We want 'The Comunist ManifeSNOW.' Vote NIPPER for Carnival Comrade and party president." - Campus classified.

Specifications

The 1985 KALEIDOSCOPE was printed in an edition of 1000 copies, 320 pages by Jostens Printing and Publishing in State College, Pa. The trim size is 9" x 12" and the paper used is #100 gloss for the color sections and #80 dull for the rest of the book.

The type used is Century Schoolbook for the body copy, and Avant Garde Bold for the majority of the headlines.

The cover material is Fabrikoid with the base material color Pearl 528. The embossed design was applied with Blue 348.

All black and white photos were taken with Kodak Tri-X pan film. All color photos were taken with Kodak's Kodachrome 64. All color enlargements were made by Lightworks of Burlington, Vermont.

Additional specifications available upon request. Address inquiries to the KALEIDOSCOPE, Drawer 31, Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt. 05753.

Final Word

After three years and three Kaleidoscopes this is my last book. Through the past few years the yearbook has grown a great deal, from 192 pages (8 color) to 320 pages (32 color). This growth could not have been possible without the support of the Administration, the Student Activities Office, parent patrons and everyone who bought a copy. To all - thank you. Special thanks to Jackie Flickinger and Helen Carpenter in the Student Activities Office, and Mark Saks at Jostens.

We have once again tried to capture the feeling of the year 1984-85 at Middlebury College in this yearbook and we hope it will provide many happy memories for years to come.
